

Fairmiles highlights benefit of airfreighted flowers at Floriform

On the 4th November, James MacGregor and Simon Derrick from Fairmiles spoke at Floriform as part of the International Floriculture Trade Fair (ITF) in Amsterdam. They took the opportunity to talk about the positive impact of floriculture and highlight our research which estimates that fresh produce (including flowers) airfreighted into Europe, benefits at least 18 million livelihoods in the Global South. Read all the latest news from Fairmiles here.

Tambuzi Shows Positive Impact of Kenyan Roses

Explore our latest case study on the website, featuring the incredible work of Tambuzi Roses in Kenya. Click here to learn more.

Latest Research

Download our latest research summary and factsheet from the Fairmiles website to find out how airfreight supports 18 million livelihoods and explore key arguments. Click here for more. We've also updated our links page with links to relevant news and research here.

Flying for Good

Beanstalk Global

Replay our recent broadcast from Beanstalk.Global here.

Upcoming Events

Airmiles or Fairmiles? Fairmiles will be presenting the latest research at the 2024 Decisions Science Conference in Phoenix. More details here.

Fairmiles will feature at an ODI Event in December on transport, trade, CO2, livelihoods and food. More details to follow

Follow Us

www.linkedin.com/company/fairmiles www.x.com/flyingforgood
www.fairmiles.org

Next Consortium Meeting: 28th November at 1pm GMT

University of Exeter

University of Northampton

